SUMMARY

I am a fourth-year Information Technology Engineering student with a strong foundation in data analysis and a passion for becoming a data scientist. My skills include MySQL for data querying and manipulation, as well as Java for backend development. I have gained hands-on experience during web development internships, where I effectively collaborated with development teams. In addition to my backend skills, I have a solid understanding of HTML, CSS, and JavaScript, which allows me to create responsive and visually appealing data visualizations. I have also worked with statistical analysis tools such as Python utilizing libraries like Pandas and NumPy for data manipulation and visualization, and conducting exploratory data analysis. I am also proficient in Tableau and have experience connecting Tableau to different data sources, designing intuitive visualizations, and creating interactive dashboards that provide a clear understanding of complex data. Moreover, my knowledge of project management and effective communication skills enables me to deliver high-quality results and collaborate efficiently with cross-functional teams.
